SELECT POETRY.

The Three Wise Men.

BY JOEL BENTON.

Three wise old men were they, were they,
Who went to walk on a winter day.
One carried a club to dig for pickle;
One wore an ulster to keep off prickles:
The third, and he was the wisest one,
To kill the mosquitoes, carried a gun.

"Oh dear!" cried one, "Three wise women I see!
The only chance for our lives is to flee!"
So they ran till they reached the great north pole,
And up in the stealthiest way they stole;
But high at the top sat a Polar bear,
Which filled the three wise men with despair.

One used his club for a parachute:
One from the stock of his gun did shoot:
The third, in the ulster, fainted away,
And there he'd have lain to this very day,
If the three old women had not appeared,
And found them all more hurt than skeered.

One fanned the ulster into life,
For which he gladly made her his wife;
One caught the club man on her ladder,—
'T was hard to tell which felt the madder,—
And the third, before he had time to ask it,
Carried the sportsman off in her basket.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE RIVAL'S WREATH.

A Startling Scene that Horrified an Italian Audience.

At length the night came, and all Naples crowded to the opera to hear Gambrica, the most powerful, the most gifted, the most renowned and dazzling cantatrice that had ever ravished heart, senses and breath from the fiery-souled inhabitants of that celebrated city. The enthusiasm of the Neapolitans for music under any circumstances is inconceivable to the people of a colder climate, but Gambrica had excited it beyond itself. Her figure, large, symmetrical and commanding, recalled Cleopatra or Juno. Her features were sweet and noble. Her eyes, endowed with the power of music, carried with every glance the highest emotions of poetry and music. The public worshipped her. She was an empress—a goddess. It was curious to witness the tempest of delight which involved the assembly and overwhelmed the performances in a chaos of frantic acclamations.

Gambrica was an Italian. With her first breath she had inhaled fire from the sun. Had she been born in Nova Zembla that bosom had held a heart of passion. Enthusiasm for good or evil would have been her leading quality. Had she been bred in the cell of a convent her vestal veins would still have run fire. Education might have modified her impetuous disposition; it could not have chilled it utterly. But her education! The air of the north had never cooled her blood. She knew not the awful solemnity of solitude. She had always lived in the glare of public observation and quaffed the intoxicating draught of public applause. It had become to her a necessary aliment—a vent—a demand of her nature. Without it she would have faded as a rose without light. It was her air—her sunshine. For years she had been the most potent attraction in her fairy theatrical world. In infancy she danced like a fairy or floated as an angel amidst murmurs of delight. As ripened her form and touched it with the fascinating graces of girlhood she had dazzled mortal eyes as sylph, naiad or princess, and at length, years rolling like summer hours over the rose, had only expanded it into a greater loveliness, had only awakened new and more dangerous power, she had queened it as if indeed a veritable enchantress. Aided by all the magic of poetry, painting, music and romance—now amid the gorgeous story of Oriental lands, now leading on the warm dreams of the burning South, now spellbound in the far gone days of Arabian fable—to the sober inhabitants of the outer earth she was only known as the heroine of those magnificent phantasmagoria. Adoring fame and dwelling amid its beams as the eagle, near the sun, she had little sympathy with or knowledge of the the common earth. Wealth was gathered by her as if it floated in the streams. She scarcely knew ambition, for she was on the "topmost round."

The world was below her, mankind at her feet, and at the sound of her voice they bent, or rose like the sea beneath the trident of its monarch.

She was the embodied dream of the poet; she became in turn, each passion; she was the priestess of nature, a creature half earthly, half divine.

He who had not seen Gambrica had seen nothing. He who had not heard her had not lived.

It was a bright life that she led—her simple appearance forever greeted by thousands and thousands with tumultuous rapture; her rising upon nations like that of Aurora, whose approach chases the shadows and overspreads the sky with rosy light.

Upon this night, after a long absence, she was to appear in her best part. The Neapolitans attended, for a thousandth time, to enjoy the wonders and witness the triumph of their queen of song.

The second part of the piece was entrusted to a young girl who had tremblingly ventured to make her debut upon this evening. Her simple and sweet taste, the quality, extent and power of her voice, had more than once gained a word of condescending encouragement from the despotic mistress of song. She did not come on until after the entrance of Gambrica, by whom, as well as by the audience, her unpretending efforts, her unpronounced name, had been unnoticed. But scarcely had she appeared when a murmur of applause ran through the audience. Nothing more unlike Gambrica could be imagined; yet so soft, ingenuous, modest and spirituelle were her air, shape and countenance, and so wonderful was the impression created by her appearance, confirmed and deepened by her voice and grace, that, as if by preconcert, an audible and universal whisper of "Who is she?" was heard, and a general stir from all parts of the house. As though afraid to give utterance to their emotions in the usual manner, the audience remained for some moments in a kind of suspense, looking to behold a heavenly illusion dispelled and this lovely visitant utter some tone or make some motion to relink her in their minds with their associations of earth. She proceeded, however, in her part; she gave a few introductory passages in the same new and exquisite manner, till at the end of a brilliant and most difficult solo, executed with a taste, ease, simplicity and power not excelled, not equalled by Gambrica herself, a startling "Brava!" "Brava!" uttered in the tone of one carried away by rapture, broke the spell of silence and shook the house.

The performance was stopped, the audience rose in a body; handkerchiefs, gloves, hats waved in the air from the high dome to the feet of the lovely being, herself astonished at the tumult she had raised. Gambrica, from the green-room, heard these ominous sounds and felt the boards tremble under her feet. She hastened forth, and from an unobserved retreat, beheld the sight blasting view of a rival, potent with all the spells of grace, youth, beauty, genius—raised like Venus, full formed from the deep, mounted upon her pedestal, waving her wand, and wielding, with a hand yesterday feeble and unknown, all her thunders. From the lips of hundreds, too, she heard undisguised raptures, sanctioning, leading on this triumph of the new and all resplendent enemy. Her ears rung with the continual and simultaneous peals. Each one seemed a bolt directed at her own head. Her breath failed, the strength forsook her limbs, rage and despair seized her bosom, paralyzed her efforts and painted themselves on her countenance. It happened that the piece represented a tale not unlike the reality of those interests and emotions which were thus brought into action, and that the two competitors before the audience bore roles which gave a fatal illustration of the downfall of long, successful ambition before the rising of a purer and lovelier star.

Marina gained each moment in the esteem of the audience. The very dissimilitude between her and Gambrica gave a new impetus to her success. For the first time the world discovered that nature had other gems than those which they had worn to the exclusion of all others, and with the caprice for which they are celebrated, they were prepared in an instant to throw aside that of which they became weary. After Gambrica, Marina pleased by force of novelty and contrast.

Gambrica felt that the sceptre was slipping from her hands. The applause which she subsequently received was not what it had been. She left the stage, having lost all inspiration, trembling, desperate as though an evil spirit had taken possession of her. A large mirror hung in the green-room. She gazed at herself in it. Her countenance was haggard, her features dark and heavy with passion, and, to throw the last shadow over her gloom, at this inopportune time and miserable moment she detected a wrinkle on on her brow, and in the dark and glossy hair parted over her forehead two or three lines of white. It is thus that mortality breaks upon the aspirations of the earthly dreamers. The curtain fell, but the audience remained, and, with vehement clamors, demanded the manager. On his appearance a general cry expressed the wish that Marina should receive an immediate engagement as prima donna. The ready caterer for their pleasure acquiesced, of course delighted to find a new treasure. Three heavy rounds of applause, offering a parting tribute to the newly risen star, and then night, calm and quiet, settled over the glittering bay and half aerial mountains, the silent and the sleeping city. For some days nothing was talked of but Marina. How capricious is the popular judgment! How utterly it will be ravished to-day with that which to-morrow will be flung by and forgotten! Gambrica's name was scarcely heard but as the precursor of an invidious comparison. Marina filled every heart. Marina was uttered by every lip. Marina was the theme of every cafe, every street, every square.

"How unlike Gambrica!" was the ungrateful exclamation.

"Ah! poverina, she has had her day," cried one.

"She was great, but she is terribly passe," said another.

"For me," cried a third, "I always knew she was overrated."

"A sunflower by the rose," said a fourth.

"Too large, too round, too tall, too heavy; her hair too black, her eyes no softness," added a fifth.

"Then," said the first, "how over-dramatic! We are too cloyed with a too studied and too voluptuous style. Nature is too elaborately improved upon. Nothing is left to itself. She may be the first of her school, but the school of Marina is the first. Did you observe her attitude last night when she drew her dagger!"

"She is a great singer, though," ventured a little dandy who had not heard Marina.

"Certainly very great, but she is always the same."

"And what horrid faces."

These strictures are general. They were the first that Gambryca had ever encountered. They fell on her heart like lava.

Again the night came, and the theatre was besieged by an enthusiastic throng. Equipage after equipage dashed up; party after party hastened in; each seat was filled; the isles were crowded; the lobbies overflowed: all the nobility, fashion, science and beauty fortunate enough to secure places were assembled. Sounds of impatience arose. Never had there been a more brilliant audience.

In a small private box over the stage, in full view, sat Gambrica alone, a spectator of this eventful hour, dressed in a simple white robe. No ornament on her uncovered head, but the raven hair parted over her brow. It was observed that once or twice her dark eyes flashed and that her cheeks were pale.

"Poor Gambrica!" whispered many; "her day is over."

Marina appeared. Not her fondest friends had dared to depict so great a triumph. She was truly successful—as the loveliest creature that was ever seen, as the most touching, noble and pure actress, and as a singer, trancendant over all her predecessors. Her voice was a phenomenon. She herself had never before known all its deep powers, its divine revelations. As she proceeded in her role, at each instance subduing, electrifying, inspiring her hearers, their enthusiasm and applause arose to an exaltation indescribable, and when she had sung the finale several times, each time more charmingly, the rounds of applause were blended into one continued shock—the audience rose in a delirium, an ecstacy rarely seen outside of an Italian opera house, and crowns, verses, wreaths, flowers, laurels and roses were showered down at her feet.

She stood silent, trembling, overwhelmed in the presence of these thundering thousands, her hands crossed upon her heaving bosom, her eyes bent modestly and gracefully to the ground. Few sights are more striking than the interior of a spacious theatre completely crowded, around, above, row behind row, circle after circle, tier over tier—an amphitheatre of heads; the floors, the ample walls, swaying with a sea of faces alive with human intellect, lurid with burning eyes, from the stage lights back to the receding columns, melting into vague masses up to the roof; and these thousands of awakened minds concentrated upon one creature, worshipped like a deity. Next to a Roman ovation come the half, unearthly triumphs of an opera.

Gambrica rose, attracting universal attention, and for a moment the stormy roar abated. The dethroned Queen lifted her tall figure, and turned her eyes upon the multitude. In her hand, and resting upon the balustrade, she grasped a massive wreath of ever living green.

"Generous Gambrica," cried a voice, "she will award the wreath!"

The most lively applause followed this suggestion, proclaiming at once that it was magnanimous and just, and the lips of a thousand echoed, "The wreath, the wreath!" Then there was a moment's silence.

"Let her advance!" was heard distinctly in every part of the house, in the silver tones of that well known voice.

Marina, her lashes glittering with tears, her cheek flushed, her bosom heaving with delight, advanced a few steps and bent her beautiful head in an attitude sweet as Psyche before the mother of Love.

That arm, majestic, was raised aloft. The wreath was cast. A chaos of applause greeted its fall; but high, shrill and audible above the roaring thunder pierced the shriek of that beautiful victim.

Marina fell dead upon the boards, crimsoned with her blood.

The fatal wreath was of bronze.

Italy is the land of poetry, even in its crimes. The incident is said to be a literal fact of recent occurrence.

Barn and Stabling.

The following plan of a model barn, is noted in a late number of The Farmers' Advocate:

The barn is 56x80; outside posts 20 feet high; purline posts 33 ft.; 5 bents, 20 ft. spans, framed according to cut. Timber used is from 6 to 8 in.; sills 3x12 in.; plank bedded on stone wall. Barn proper is 56 x80, leaving 20x56 ft. for straw house. Driving floor 16 ft. wide. Bays on each side floored with double inch boards. Double doors work on rollers. There is a ventilating door in each gable end, working with a small pulley from the floor; and on the roof, which are very useful in time of thrashing to allow dust to escape. On each side of the driving floor is a ladder reaching to the top of barn. Granary is 20 ft. square, and bins 6 ft deep on each side, leaving 8x20 ft. to keep the mill in for clearing up. Barn is well lighted. Should stone be scarce, the wall need be no higher than to clear the ground. The stable is in three parts: 1st—36 ft. is taken from one end divided in three parts; the centre is the feed room, 25x20; stables 18 ft. deep, with five stalls in each part. 2nd—a yard 56 x30, for young stock. There is a trap door at the side door to drop down straw. If water can be had a well is preferable in this yard. There is a large door on each side to drive in and take out the manure. 3rd—The cow stable is directly under the straw house, 56x25 ft., divided into three parts; centre is feed room, 25 x26, with a trap door above to let down chaff. Stables are 15 ft. deep, and six stalls on each side. All stables well lighted, as well as feed room and yard. There are outer doors for stables and inner doors leading into the centre yards. The stables are 8½ and 9 ft. high. The advantages over other stables are:—Lighter and shorter timbers. There are two rows of central posts run up to top of building, forming the purline work, and the whole building being framed into these posts makes a much stronger frame. It is handier for storing, for forks working and for thrashing; is better ventilated; all straw inside, all stock inside; manure all under cover. When a farmer has one of these barns he has all the outbuildings he requires.

Successful Business Men the Least Hurried.

A writer in Sunday Afternoon says: "When all the rich men have set up statues everywhere in honor of the industrious, I mean to beg enough money to persuade some clever artist to execute a statue of the Dustrious man to be set up in the market place. It makes me laugh and cry by turns to go into one of our money streets and see the anxious men and boys hurrying up and down. One would think that business and hurry were partners, but they are really enemies to each other. The most successful men of business are the least hurried. What would not men give, if they could get rid of this perpetual hurry and drive, this galloping to the end of a journey only to mount a fresh steed and gallop on the next stage, the clatter of the horse's hoofs an accompaniment to all their thoughts. There is certainly something ignominious in the confession which people are constantly making, that they have no time to do this or that needful thing, and that they shall breathe more freely if they can once clear their desk, or finish this job, or wipe out this obligation. One comes to feel that Time has been borrowed from, and that one's notes are perpetually maturing, while one makes a vain effort to cancel them by giving fresh notes. We turn round in a helpless sort of fashion and berate the age we live in with its whizzing locomotives and its clicking telegraphs, as if the punctuality of railway trains and the instantaneousness of despatches were not the very friends and servants of honest leisure."

A New Process with Coffee.

A German has just discovered a process which he has patented, and by which he claims to be able to preserve coffee in all its perfection, and at the same time to render it more portable and unalterable for a length of time. To effect his object he subjects the freshly-roasted and ground coffee to a pressure of from forty to seventy atmospheres (thirty-three pounds to the square inch each) in suitable cast-iron molds. The coffee is thus made into cakes, and comes into the market in a form resembling chocolate, divided like the latter by lines, to facilitate breaking into pieces of suitable size for use. The interior surface of the mold is highly polished, by which means the outer crust of the compressed coffee is made sufficiently smooth and hard to prevent the tendency of the ethereal oil of the berry to escape from the interior of the cakes. The volume of the coffee thus prepared is reduced to less than one-third of that of the original. The inventor claims that the operation does not in the least affect the good qualities of the article, and that it can be packed and transported in tin-foil, or otherwise, preserving its aroma indefinitely.

The undertaker is a thrifty man always. He gets his living where another man dies.

The slightest excess of expenditure over income is poverty, and the slightest excess of income over expenses is wealth.

The letter "O" is called the most charitable of all the alphabet, because it is found oftener than any in "doing good."

Distinguish between blindness, ignorance, want of attention and malice; words sometimes slip from the tongue which the heart neither hatched nor harbored.

Domestic.

Queen's Cake.—One pound of flour, one pound of sugar, one pound of butter, eight eggs. Beat separately; add essence of lemon.

Minute Loaf Cake.—One cup and a half of sugar, half a cup of butter, one cup of milk, three cups of flour, two teaspoonful of cream tartar, one teaspoonful of soda. Nutmeg.

Aunt Milly's Cup Cake.—Four cups of flour, four eggs, two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, one-half cup of sweet milk, half a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of cream tartar.

Feather Cake.—One cup of sugar, half a cup of milk, one cup and a half of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream tartar. Flavor.

Grazing of the Skin.—If the skin is raised, wet it, and put it in its place. Cover it with the thin skin taken from the inside of an egg, a little gold-beaters' skin, a cobweb, or piece of thin silk dipped in oil. Tie a piece of tape or ribbon round it, and leave it undisturbed for two or three days.

Scratch from a Cat.—A scratch from a cat is sometimes not only painful, but difficult to heal. When this is the case, the limb should be bathed with a hot fomentation of camomile and poppy heads, and a hot bread and water poultice applied, to be renewed with the bathing, every four hours.

To Clean Corsets.—Take out the steels at front and sides, then scrub thoroughly with tepid or cold lather of white Castile soap, using a very small scrubbing brush. Do not lay them in water. When quite clean let cold water run on them freely from the spigot to rinse out the soap thoroughly. Dry, without ironing, (after pulling lengthwise until they are straight and shapely,) in a cool place.

Oil Stains Out of White Cloth.—Make a strong solution of borax water—one tablespoonful powdered borax to a pint of boiling water. Place the cloth on a clean board or table, and rub the oil stains well, using a clean brush dipped into the solution. If the spots are of long standing, a very little soap may be used with the borax water. Rinse well with clean hot water, using the brush for that purpose; then rub dry with a clean, soft cloth.

Farm Life.

It is a common complaint that the farm and farm life are not appreciated by our people. We long for the more elegant pursuits or the ways and fashions of the town. But the farmer has the most sane and natural occupation, and ought to find life sweeter, if less highly seasoned, than any other. He alone, strictly speaking, has a home. How can a man take root and thrive without land? He writes his history upon his field. How many ties, how many resources he has; his friendships with his cattle, his team, his dog, his trees, the satisfaction in his growing crops, in his improved fields; his intimacy with Nature, with bird and beast, and with the quickening elemental forces; his co-operations with the cloud, the sun, the seasons, heat, wind, rain, frost. Nothing will take the various social distempers which the city and artificial life breed out of a man like farming, like direct and loving contact with the soil. It draws out the poison. It humbles him, teaches him patience and reverence, and restores the proper tone to his system.

Cling to the farm, make much of it, bestow your heart and your brain upon it, so that it shall savor of you and radiate your virtue after your day's work is done!

Fultz Wheat.

The Fultz wheat is the best variety now in the market, and if properly farmed, will yield on an average equal to any wheat in the country, says the American Miller. Many farmers claim 40 bushels per acre this season. It has a stiff straw, and does not lose any grain in handling, and when it is cut will lie compact and take up less barn room than any other variety of wheat. It will weigh 61 lbs. per bushel if clean; it always sells readily for the highest price, and the flour manufactured from it has no superior. The farmers have it in their power to have the best wheat in the country, and always find a ready sale; and why will they persist in spreading a worthless variety that will not benefit them in the least. Farmers, take warning.

That family is the best who obtain not unjustly, keep not unfaithfully, and spend in a way that produces no repentance.

For years past the number of inventions annually before the English Patent Commissioners has been nearly the same—about 5,000. This year about 1,700 were found to be not worth proceeding with. Thousands invent in haste and repent at leisure.

Have You Ever

Known any person to be seriously ill without a weak stomach or inactive liver or kidneys? And when these organs are in good condition do you not find their possessor enjoying good health? Parker's Ginger Tonic always regulates these important organs, and never fails to make the blood rich and pure, and to strengthen every part of the system. It has cured hundreds of despairing invalids. Ask your neighbor about it. See other column. 10-4t.

A Big Success.

"My wife has been ailing a long time with dyspepsia and nervousness, and was in bed two years with a complication of disorders her physicians could not cure when I was led by reading a circular left at my door to try Parker's Ginger Tonic. Having been so often deceived by worthless mixtures, nothing but my wife's dangerous condition could have led me to make any more experiments. But it was a big success. Three bottles cured her, at a cost of a dollar and fifty cents, and she is now as strong as any woman, and regularly does her household duties.—R. D., Buffalo. See other column. 10-4t.

A Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young man remember this.—Traveller. 12-2t

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.—Post. 12-2t

SENATOR MITCHELL.

The Conference Committee held on the evening of the 23d on the first ballot unanimously selected Hon. Jno. I Mitchell, of Tioga county, as the choice of the conference for United States Senator. Both factions met in the general Republican caucus on the following morning and unanimously ratified the action of the Conference Committee in naming John I. Mitchell. At noon the joint Convention met for the last time and took the thirty-fifth ballot which resulted: Mitchell 150, Wallace 92, B. H. Brewster 1, Wayne McVeagh 1; total 244. Only five members were absent or paired. Lieut.-Gov. Stone, President of the Convention, then signed as did also the tellers the certificate of election, and John I. Mitchell was formally declared elected to succeed Senator Wallace.

It is with unfeigned satisfaction that we announce the happy termination of a struggle which has been fought so bitterly for the past six weeks, and which threatened to disrupt the Republican organization of the State. We rejoice with the whole party over so grand a consummation of the vexed question, and if the least question of dissatisfaction can be raised respecting the final result, we do not see what it can be based upon. Mr. Mitchell is personally known to almost every man in the Northern Tier, and to know him one must admire his integrity, his manhood. He is able, conscientious and pure, and is just the man to represent the great State of Pennsylvania in the United States Senate. With the Buffalo Express, we think "no mistake has been made in choosing him. He will represent his constituents and himself, but do so without quarreling with his colleague."

THE Buffalo Express, of Monday, published a rumor that there was a probability of MacVeagh being selected as a compromise candidate by the warring Senatorial factions at Harrisburg. If such should be the outcome of the contest, it would, we believe, prove satisfactory to the Republican party of the State. Mr. McVeagh is not only a gifted orator, but one of the ablest lawyers in the commonwealth. If MacVeigh is not acceptable to the two factions let them unite upon Hon. Jno. I. Mitchell, the present member of Congress from this district, Judge Scofield or Lieut.-Gov. Stone. Either one named would be heartily endorsed by the "regulars." Let a Republican, tried and true, be nominated, is what the party asks.

Running His Own Machine

Probably no event since the election has created so much commotion in political circles everywhere as the visit of Senator Conkling to Mentor on Wednesday. The enterprising press is full of speculation as to what it means. The stalwarts of New York, according to the Herald, are "in an agony of curiosity and hope," while the reformers are "in an agony of curiosity and fear," and the public at large has a craving curiosity to know what it is all about. According to our notion, the whole matter is very simple. General Garfield evidently intends to enter upon his administration with a full and frank understanding with all the leaders of the party. With this in view he has invited Logan, and Cameron, and Conkling, and Storrs, and Allison, and Fenton, and a score of other gentlemen, to visit him at his home. They have all been there in their turn, and yesterday, last, but by no means least, came Senator Blaine, the prospective premier of the republic, who had a long and pleasant interview with the President-elect. There is wisdom in a multiplicity of councils, and Garfield is wise and level-headed enough to sift the grain from the chaff, when it is all over, as it very nearly is. One thing is pretty certain, that is that he will be President, and will be no man's man. There is no reason why he should antagonize any element of the party in advance and without cause, and he does not intend to do so.—Cleveland Leader.

Mahone's Probable Course.

General Mahone is an enlightened and a brave man. He will take his seat in the Senate on the 4th of March as the pioneer of the great movement which is to break the power of Bourbonism. He will find his independence respected in the Senate by the friends of an Administration the highest aim of which will be to deserve the support of men of his stamp at the South. With them he will find his only natural affiliations, for the rest are Bourbons of the Bourbons. The Republican party has no other cause for quarrel with the Bourbons than has General Mahone. He and they alike fight that faction because it is destructive and unpatriotic, unfaithful to the laws, unfriendly to the idea of a nation, and a hindrance to freedom and progress. He will find that the Administration Senators, among whom he has selected his seat, have no policy except the enforcement of the laws and an honest, liberal, and prudent administration of the Government. His past record is proof enough that he will not hesitate to act in the Senate with those whose purposes have been and are like his own.

The leaders of the Republican party have great faith in and admiration for General Mahone, and although they are aware that he will submit to no caucus dictation or control from any quarter, they will meet him with that cordiality which they naturally feel for one who can at all times be relied on to aid in resisting Bourbon schemes and crushing out the Bourbon organization. As to the organization of the Senate, it is not the General's habit, as he puts it, to vote until election day; but it is to be presumed that he will not on any election day vote a Bourbon ticket. Of that no better proof is given than his contest in Virginia. This will, of course, suit the opposition, for the Democratic National Committee, W. H. Barnum, Chairman, long since decided that it was not Democratic for Democrats to vote for General Mahone.—Washington National Republican.

R. N. & PENN'A. RAILROAD.

Articles of incorporation were filed in Albany on the 14th inst. by the reorganized Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The capital stock of the new company is $1,000,000, which is probably sufficient to complete their road to the State line. But when that point is reached what road does this re-vamped company propose to connect with? is a question frequently asked by those familiar with the history of the old organization. A short resume of that history may not prove uninteresting reading at this time.

The Northern Railroad and Navigation Company was organized under an act of Assembly which was passed by the Legislature of 1868. The act, with the several supplements, the last of which was passed at the session of 1874, granted extraordinary powers to this company. It gave authority to build a road from the New York State line to the southern line of the counties of Clearfield and Jefferson, with branches into any portion of the counties of McKean, Elk, Cameron, Clearfield and Jefferson. It authorized the mining of coal, the manufacture of iron or preparing and transporting to market the products of the lands of the company, whatever those products should be. The act also gave the company the right to hold an unlimited quantity of land in the five counties. A more liberal charter was never granted by the Pennsylvania Legislature, and it would have been literally impossible to have secured such legislation in any of the anthracite or developed bituminous sections of the commonwealth.

The first organization of the company was effected in the latter part of the year 1869 or early in 1870, with the following named gentleman as a board of directors: Hon. B. D. Hamlin, Col. A. I. Wilcox, Hon. S. A. Backus, Joseph Morse, J. R. Chadwick and L. Rogers, with N. F. Jones as President. During the years of 1870 and 1871 a survey was made from the State line to Bishop's Summit, in this county, which was subsequently adopted by the company. The company also secured the right of way on nearly the entire length of this portion of their line. In the latter part of the year 1872, parties representing the Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad Company—notably an adventurer by the name of James Hill—commenced making overtures to the Northern Railroad and Navigation Company for a consolidation. The result was a meeting of the representatives of the two companies in the village of Cuba, N. Y., in the following June, when the preliminary steps were taken to effect the consolidation. About a month later an adjourned meeting was held in the village of Mt. Morris, where it was completed.

The terms of this consolidation were, in brief, that the new company was to transport coal from the lands of gentlemen connected with the Northern Railroad and Navigation Company, in the townships of Norwich and Sergeant, in this county, to the State line at one-half cent per ton per mile less than for any other coal shippers; that they were to pay the Northern Railroad and Navigation Company $5,000 for expenses incurred to that date and were to have the road completed from Rochester to the northern line of Sergeant township by the first of July of the next year. In case of the failure of these conditions the charter and franchises to revert to the Pennsylvania company. We are most credibly informed that the Northern Railroad and Navigation Company never received a cent of the $5,000; and we need not say that the other conditions stipulated were not carried out. In the mean time the New York company had sent irresponsible parties to Europe to negotiate their bonds. As a matter of course their efforts in that direction proved a total failure. In the December following, after most beseeching appeals that the bonds could not be sold without a land basis, the gentlemen representing the Pennsylvania company gave them a contract for the sale of some 5,000 acres of coal land in this county at $42.50 per acre.

For months after the bonds and land were hawked over Europe but no sale was effected. We have every reason to believe, however, that a negotiation would have been brought about had there not been an attempt to swindle those who proposed to purchase the bonds, but we have not space now to give the particulars of that attempt. In the summer of 1874 the New York company must have believed that there was some show show for the sale of their bonds, for they begged piteously for a renewal of their contract with the Pennsylvania company. The latter company finally consented to a meeting, and it was held in the city of Rochester sometime early in the fall of that year. At that meeting, after the most positive assertions on the part of the officers of the New York company that their bonds were sold, a new contract was entered into between the two companies which embraced the sale of the coal lands in this county, together with the railroad franchise. In this sale the New York company gave the Pennsylvania company a draft on London of $5,000 and a note of $20,000, payable on the first of January following, neither of which was paid at maturity or ever after. In fact no part of any contract entered into between the two companies has been carried out in a single particular by the Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania company. When they were pretending that their bonds were sold, a responsible firm took a contract to construct a section of their road in this county. This firm actually paid out for supplies and work done about $12,000 not a cent of which have they ever received from this swindling Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The men composing that company as originally formed, have shown themselves to be unworthy the confidence of business men, and wonderfully successful as shysters of the first water.

Finally they commenced proceedings in the courts to foreclose and sell the property of the company in the State of New York, thereby swindling every man or firm who had ever imposed sufficient confidence in them to trust them either for material or work. In the very complaint which they filed pleading for authority to sell they formally announced that they had abandoned, as of no value, the Pennsylvania end of their franchise. The courts assented to their request, and after advertising in an obscure paper, the existence of which their principal creditors had no knowledge, the sale was made, the claim of every honest creditor wiped out, including the towns along the line of their road which had issued bonds for their benefit to the extent of upwards of a million of dollars, and the scoundrels who controlled the Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad organization pocketed the swag. By this rascally operation the property of the company, which up to that date had cost hundreds of thousands of dollars was bid in by one of the gang at the beggarly sum of $5000. Immediately after preparations were perfected for another plundering raid on the public, with what success we are not thoroughly informed, as from that period until recently their "Dick Turpin" operations have been confined to New York State.

We should not have given so much space to the transactions between these two companies, and probably would have never noticed them, were it not for the efforts now being made by this same Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad crowd to prevent the carrying forward of an enterprise which would prove of incalculable benefit not only to this county, but to a large section of Northwestern Pennsylvania. In April of last year a sale was made by the Sheriff of this county, of all the rights and franchises of the Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad Company in Pennsylvania, on a judgment obtained by Jno. R. Chadwick, Esq., as trustee for the Northern Railroad & Navigation Company. The purchaser under this sale was Hon. J. C. Backus, of this Borough who proceeded at once to reorganize the company. Every form of law was strictly observed in this sale and reorganization. Subsequently the rights and franchises of the new organization were turned over to a company of which Hon. C. R. Earley is President and among the Directors are such well known gentlemen as ex-Gov. Curtin, B. K. Jamison and Wm. M. Stewart of Philadelphia. This company under the corporate name of New York, Ridgway & Pittsburgh Railroad Company commenced at once to make arrangements to build a road from the State line in this county to Brookville in Jefferson county. They had about completed their arrangements for the money necessary to carry on this important enterprise when they were confronted with the information by the capitalists with whom they were negotiating, that notice had been served upon them by parties representing the Rochester, Nunda & Pennsylvania Railroad gang, that the latter company held the line in Pennsylvania which the New York, Ridgway & Pittsburgh Railroad Company proposed to occupy. In their heart of hearts they know that they have no legal rights in this State, and yet they know that capitalists will not buy into a lawsuit. They have, therefore, in their villainous manner of doing business, dogged in sleuth hound style every movement made by Dr. Earley's company to raise the money necessary to carry out the purposes of his organization. The courts will in the end mete out justice in this case, but it may be too late for this country to derive any benefit from it.

They Don't Know.

In conclusion, however, it will not be amiss to state that neither Senator Conkling, Vice President-elect Arthur, nor Senator Blaine knows definitely who the ministers of the next President ought to be. Senator Blaine's friends believe confidently that he is to be Secretary of State. A very powerful wing of the stalwart New Yorkers are positive in the statement that Folger has been tendered and has accepted the Treasury portfolio. Senator Conkling, apparently, is more contented and happy than he has been for years past, but why he is so contented and happy he will not explain, even to his most intimate friends. He will only say that the coming administration will be a great improvement on the last four years.—H. C.'s Washington Letter to New York Times.

A Lecture to Young Men On The Loss of MANHOOD

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and Radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhea, induced by self-abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—By ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," etc.

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.

Smethport, Pa., Feb. 24, 1881.

HERE AND HEREABOUTS.

Hon. John I. Mitchell, Congressman from this district, will please accept our thanks for documents received.

Preaching at the Eben Gallup School House next Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock by Rev. W. B. Wagoner.

—It is very sickly in this section just at present. Measles, mumps and scarlet fever are the prevailing diseases.

—Both Picard and Reilly are pushing the work on their hotels as fast as possible. Both will soon be occupied.

—We call attention to the two articles headed, "Rochester, Nunda & Penna. Railroad" and "The New Railroad and Coal Project, which appear in the MINER of to-day.

—Teams wanted for bark hauling, either by the cord or by the day at the Brookston Tannery, Brookston, Forrest Co., Penn. 9 6t.

—An elegant feast was spread before the Bradford journalists in honor of the election of W. F. Jordan as Mayor of Bradford, Tuesday afternoon, at the Hotel La Pierre.

—In last week's paper we stated that A. J. Parker and Samuel McBride were elected Inspectors of election in Keating township. We should have said A. J. Parker and E. F. Randolph.

It is reported that one Frank Grimes who resided a few miles west of Port Allegany, was killed by being struck by a falling tree, on Monday last. We have not learned further particulars.

—Ed. Schenck, of the Bennett House, has been buying another fast nag, and he thinks he now has a team that can "get away" with any in the county. He certainly has a nice turn-out.

—Adam Forepaugh, the great showman, offers a premium of $10,000 for the "loveliest lady in the land." Here is a chance for some one of the Smethport belles to "hitch onto" a good thing.

—Any lack of interest in this week's paper may be laid to the fact that the time of the entire force of the office has been devoted to the jobbing department. The "avalanche" struck us bad this week.

—Judge Jenks has decided that when parents send a child to school they surrender all authority over it, and that they have no right to dictate to the teacher in reference to the studies they shall pursue.

—We understand a special train will be run from Smethport to Bradford and return on Saturday evening to accommodate persons who wish to attend Haverly's Minstrels at Wagner's Opera House, on that evening.

—The State Normal School offers teachers the very best and cheapest opportunities for study. It will pay every young teacher to spend at least one term in the school. For information address, J. A. Cooper, Edinboro, Pa.

—Chicken thieves still exist and lately made a raid upon some belonging to Mrs. L. T. Medbery. The party who committed this petty act of meanness is known, and if the theft is repeated the guilty one will be prosecuted.

—Jim Jacobs, the Seneca Indian bear hunter, is reported as having been found dead in a rude cabin in a lonely part of Potter county a few days ago, by a party of hunters. He was buried near the hut. The report is generally credited by his friends.

—As the time for the election of a County Superintendent of schools approaches, candidates are becoming thicker than the locusts of Egypt. With such an army to select from one good man ought certainly to be selected. We bet on the field.

—Philip W. Roth, R. B. Stone and S. C. Smith each sold their one-eighth interest in Knapp's Creek Oil Company to Potts & Slike on private terms. Potts & Slike and H. M. Tew & Co. now hold all the capital. The company have twenty-eight wells near Rixford.

—The Rev. Mr. McCandless returns from his home this week, and will officiate at the usual hours on Sunday next—Also, services on Ash-Wednesday at 11 a. m. (with Holy Communion) and at 7 p. m.; and on Friday and Saturday evenings, March 4th and 5th at 7 o'clock.

—Bills were posted about town last week announcing a pedestrian contest to take place at the Opera House Feb. 22, for $100 a side and sweepstakes, between Nick Murphy and W. O. Leary. The parties did not put in an appearance, however, and for which they are justly denominated first class frauds.

—There has been a complaint of insufficiency of heating apparatus in some of the new school houses. Never was any complaint of that kind in our school days, heavy rulers and cutting rattans were always "on hand," and the boys were "warmed" pretty often. It was ruler ruin with the old masters.

—We call especial attention to the advertisement in another column announcing that the elegant dwelling house and lot owned by the Taylor estate, in this borough, will be sold at public sale on the sixth of April. It is a most desirable property and any one wishing to purchase a splendid property will do well to attend the sale.

—By telegram the family of Judge Brownell were to-day apprised of the death of Charles Gillis, of Mount Pleasant, Iowa. The message stated that Mr. Gillis was "shot by some person unknown," and further than this we have as yet no particulars. Mr. Gillis was a son of Judge Gillis, and his wife is a sister of Mrs. Judge Brownell.

—Rev. P. T. Lynn, the "sweet singer," who has been assisting Rev. Wagoner for the past two weeks, departed for Prattsburg, N. Y., Monday, where he has been assigned to watch over that charge. He made a favorable impression here, and the good wishes of the community follow him to his new field of labor.

—An important letter mailed to our address from Smethport on the 7th inst., was just one week in reaching this office. Port Allegany being only about seventeen miles by mail route from Smethport, the letter averaged only a little over two miles a day enroute to its destination. Who shall have credit for this remarkable speed?—Reporter.

—A. A. Roff accused of the crime of assault with intent to do bodily harm in Allegany county, N. Y., was arrested a short time since and lodged in jail at Smethport. On Monday last Sheriff Gillies, of Allegany county, came here armed with a requisition and took the offender back to that county where he will be tried for the alleged crime of assault.

—We would like to remind the pound master that the loneliest, most stinking, loudest, and most detestable creature of the goat species that was ever built or came into existence, is daily running about the streets of the borough, butting small children off the walks and frightening the lives out of ladies who happen to be passing near his loafing places. It is time this loafer was put out of the way, and if the authorities do not attend to the matter some one else will.

—Harry Wilson was in town yesterday arranging the Wendell store for occupancy. Harry says he will go to the city the first of next week for the purpose of buying a stock of goods, and by the latter part of the week will have his store stocked with goods. He thoroughly understands the business and will have a good trade. It is one of the best stands in the borough and there is no reason why Harry will not do a big business in the grocery line.

—We made reference in last week's paper to the extraordinary inducements offered by the B. N. Y. & P. R. R. to those who wished to attend the inaugural ceremonies at Washington March 4th. On the 1st, 2d, and 3d of March return tickets will be sold at all the principal stations on the line for the very low sum of $13—good for six days from the date of sale. It is seldom one can go to the National Capitol and return for $13, and we have no doubt great numbers will take advantage of this opportunity.

—Our old and valued friend, Leroy Lyman, of Potter county, paid us a visit yesterday. In answer to the question whether he had hunted any this winter, he replied: "No, not much. I thought I would let the boys beat me once, but they failed to do it. I have only killed 22 deer, 17 skunks, 16 foxes, one bear, two coons and three mink—that's all." Mr. Lyman is unquestionably one of the greatest and most successful hunters that ever tramped through the woods of Pennsylvania. Mr. Lyman says the published reports that "Jim Jacobs, the Seneca bear hunter, had been found dead in a rude cabin in a lonely part of Potter county last week and buried near the hut," was all moonshine. He says the people of his county do not bury even Indians in the woods near their "huts."

From Norwich.

NORWICH, Pa., Feb. 22, 1881.

To the Editor of the Miner:

As announced in your columns, a donation party for the benefit of Rev. E. G. Piper met at the residence of Orlando Gallup on the evening of the 16th inst. Notwithstanding the severity of the snow storm raging at the time, a goodly number were present, and of course all had a good time. The receipts of the evening aggregated about $55. While all present done nobly, we think special mention should be made of C. M. Colegrove, of "Tank City," who not only donated liberally in money, but also furnished the oysters and crackers for the supper free gratis. Taking all the surroundings into consideration, we feel that our donation was a complete success.

ONE OF THEM.

Personal.

—Col. A. I. Wilcox, of Kendall, was in town Monday and Tuesday.

—H. F. Barbour is assisting Clerk Shoemaker in the Commissioner's office.

—D. R. Hamlin, accompanied by his mother, started for Washington this afternoon.

—Hon. L. Rogers started for Harrisburg yesterday morning after a visit of several days at his old home.

—R. B. Poore, of Cincinnati, Superintendent of the American Express Company, made Smethport a visit last Tuesday.

—Dr. Thos. Carroll returned from Buffalo to-day, the happiest person on earth, having just graduated from the Buffalo Medical College.

—We are indebted to J. H. Prouty for late copies of the Iowa State Register. Mr. Prouty was formerly a resident of this place, and Superintendent of the Smethport Extract Works.

—Messrs. A. Reilly and S. A. Bishop are spending a day or two in Buffalo. Reilly says he has not been there in twenty-four years and he will naturally discover that the "village" has grown somewhat.

—F. H. Goodyear & Son, well known to the lumbermen of this section, were in town yesterday. They have leased Gifford's mill for the coming season and intend, through their agent, Seth Gifford, to manufacture an immense amount of lumber.

The New R. R. and Coal Project.

We are credibly informed that the Bradford and Clermont R. R. Co. have fully determined to push their enterprise to completion as early in the spring as possible. They have also decided to follow the summit around the head of Marvin Creek, with the hopes of securing a line to Kane at an early day, as well as save the necessity of drawing coal trains up the heavy grade off from the valley of Marvin Creek to the summit at Ormsby's. The Kane connection is of far more importance than it would seem upon first reflection. The prospect for an oil development of considerable importance in close proximity to Kane on the north and running from there to the south-west corner of the county has become reduced to an almost absolute certainty. The Clarendon development is gradually working towards Sheffield and the McKean county line and it looks now as though Sheffield as well as Kane would soon become the centres of important oil districts. The distance from Sheffield to Bradford via the Phila. & Erie to Kane and thence by the Bordell road to Bradford is much less than by any other route, not excepting the proposed Olean, Bradford and Warren extension. Then add to this business what can reasonably be expected from the building of the Clarion narrow-gauge road to Kane, which is not among the improbabilities, and there is a future prosperity in store for the several lines controlled by the Bradford, Bordell and Kinzua Company which will surpass any ever yet experienced by the most profitable roads either in the old or new oil counties of the State.

In this connection we have not considered the coal business which the road must do after the extension to Clermont is completed. We understand it is proposed by the company to purchase the tract of land lying north of Clermont between the waters of Red Mill Brook on the east and Warner Brook and Long Brook on the west, embracing about 3,000 acres. From Mr. Ransom Beckwith of this borough, who lived all the fore part of his life on a farm which comprises a part of this tract, and who has made more coal openings in Sergeant township than any other individual, we gather the following facts in reference to the coal openings on this 3,000 acres. The opening from which more coal has been mined than from any other on the property is on the farm formerly owned by Mr. Beckwith's father but at present the property of Col. Wilcox. The mining was done principally by the farmers in the neighborhood and not in a very scientific manner. The coal at this opening was considered as good, if not superior for blacksmithing purposes, as any ever mined on Bunker Hill, and for years before the completion of the Erie Railway was shipped in sleighs and even in wagons all over the New York counties lying north of McKean as far as the city of Buffalo. In answer to the question, "how soon could that opening be put in shape for mining to advantage?" Mr. Beckwith replied: "In a few weeks." He thought that within ninety days 10,000 tons could be got ready for shipment. Over the summit from the Beckwith farm, in a northerly direction, on what is known as Woodruff run this vein is opened where it shows a thickness of three feet. On the farm, at the outcrop it measures only 32 inches. A little farther north but lower down in the measures is found what is known as the "Blue" vein. This shows 3 feet of clean beautiful coal, apparently free from sulphur or slate. A half mile still further north of this, on another branch of Woodruff run is found the "Billy" vein, measuring where it was opened 3 feet 6 inches. In a north-westerly direction from this last opening about a mile and a half, on the waters of Long Brook, to reach which the summit must be crossed, was opened what is known as the "Deer Lick" vein which is 3 feet 2 inches in thickness when work was stopped on it. In about a quarter of a mile east of this last opening, but lower down the stream a vein was found lying on the conglomerate. It was almost impossible to reach it in place by a drift, and a well was therefore sunk on it some distance higher up. At that place it proved a four foot vein and the coal resembled the Mercer county "Block" coal more closely than any ever found in the Bunker Hill coal basin. About a mile east of this last showing along the north side of the tract is to be found the "Beckwith" vein, which was opened many years ago by the father of our informant. This opening is but a short distance from the premises of Adam Martin, Esq. This vein shows 6 feet of coal with two partings of slate and clay of 8 and 4 inches in thickness, respectively. The upper seam shows over 4 feet of clear coal.

Other openings have been made at different points around this tract, in fact on every side of an unbroken summit which runs from the northern to the southern line of the entire 3,000 acres, but it is hardly worth while to particularize further. Enough has already been shown to satisfy any unprejudiced mind that the company that secures this valuable property in connection with a railroad leading to a country where coal is of necessity the predominating fuel used in generating steam or for blacksmithing purposes, has come into possession of a source of revenue which will continue to enhance in value as the years wear on, and for generations after the oil of the known fields has been sucked from the bowels of the earth.

Eight Feathered Tails.

Numerous inquires have been received at the Treasury Department at Washington, from all sections of the country relative to the value of a standard silver dollar on which the eagle has eight tail feathers. It appears that a report has been circulated that only a few of these pieces were coined, and that consequently they possess great numismatic interest and value. The facts, however, are that owing to a defect in the hub from which the first dies used at the mints for coining the standard silver dollars were made, the eagle had eight tail feathers. A new one was substituted on which the engraver put seven feathers in the tail but this was not done until about half a million of pieces were struck at the Philadelphia mint, and probably as many more at the Western mints. The eight feathered tail dollars are therefore of no more value than those with only seven.

Complimentary.

A Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writes to that paper under date of Feb. 15, the following kind words of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Redfield, so well and favorably known in Smethport. They are deserving of every good word said of them, and we gladly give space to what the correspondent says:

There is a man here whom Commercial readers are interested in—the mysterious individual who tosses Congressional news over the wires day after day, week after week, for the public ear. These items are labeled "Special." They bear no signature, yet are accepted as authority wherever the sheet is read. They contain facts, figures, knowledge of daily routine in the Capitol, requiring a compiler both alert and conscientious.

Years ago, the Commercial published news letters, semi-political, from various parts of the country signed

"H. V. R."

They attracted a great deal of attention. I remember reading them with admiration and feeling in awe of the writer. He was an old man, I fancied—one who had reached a time of life that enabled him to look on all sides of a question; he was mature, experienced, conservative. There was a directness, an original way of treating subjects, which caught the public at once, and when the writer, "H. V. R.," took charge of the Washington business, while his racy correspondence was missed, his good telegraphic work was appreciated.

I never met Mr. Redfield until this week. He is not at all what I expected to see; neither owlish, aged nor precise. In age, not much past thirty, I should say; rather slender, of muscular frame, and with quick motions; brown hair, clear complexion, bright dark eyes and frank, easy manners. He is married, and has three children, a girl and two little boys.

is a Pennsylvanian. She is a charming lady, with cordial, vivacious ways, and a bright face, out of which the happy light of girlhood has not faded. "She is a great reader," said Mr. Redfield, "but has never dabbled much in ink."

I always want to know how people in whose work I am interested, look. Whether they are old, or young, stout or spare, dark or fair. Others have the same curiosity, so I have taken the first chance to tell you what the Commercial man is like. He will not know it, until he sees it in print, beside his own multitudinous "specials," for my letter journeys by rail, and never crosses his electric way. His work speaks for itself; he is well known and holds a high place in the newspaper fraternity. But that he is friends who read his morning telegrams as regular as they eat breakfast will be glad to know.

The New Bible—Quick Work.

The new version of the new Testament, which has been so many years in course of translation, and which is unquestionably the most important literary enterprise this century has seen, is being waited for with curiosity and anxiety by hundreds of thousands. It is not generally known that the first edition of 500,000 copies has already been manufactured in England, and 100,000 copies are said to be already in New York city, not one of them permitted to be sold. They are awaiting a telegram from the authorities in England authorizing their issue. The first copies can only be had at the extravagant price of $10 per copy. The Literary Revolution proposes fully to meet the demands which its army of friends are making upon it by doing probably the quickest work in bookmaking which has ever yet been accomplished. Arrangements have been fully made to put the entire book into type inside of twenty-four hours from the time a printed copy of the English edition can be procured, and within three days at least 10,000 copies will be bound ready for delivery to waiting purchasers, and at least 5,000 copies will be manufactured every day thereafter until the demand is met. It will be printed in large, beautiful type, neatly and strongly bound in cloth, in a volume of about 500 pages, and sold at the nominal price of thirty cents. A fine edition in half Russia, gilt top, will be sold for sixty cents, and one in full Turkey Morocco, gilt edges, for $1.25. Of course, the popular demand will be enormous. Orders will be filled in the order in which they are received, with remittance. American Book Exchange, New York.

From Frisbee.

To the Editor of the Miner.

FRISBEE, Feb. 21.

Business here is quite lively.

Frisbee's mill commenced running this morning and intends to run night and day. Charley says it is hard, but it must be done.

Tuttle & Conner have just returned from Buffalo, where they purchased a turning lathe and other machinery which will increase the capacity for business in their planing mill. They are energetic and mean business.

The protracted meeting which has been running for the past four weeks with very good success has closed, and now comes the proselyting, which I am sorry to say has already begun. One good brother of a different denomination gravely advised the preacher in charge not to coax some of the converts too hard to join his church, as they had relatives in other churches.

Charley Beers' only son died of measles (which are very prevalent here) last Friday morning. Funeral services were held at the U. B. church in Coryville, Rev. W. C. Wilton, of Smethport, officiating. The remains were taken to Farmers Valley for interment. While returning from the cemetery H. Plummer's team took fright at the breaking of the draw-bolt and cleared the sleigh with one bound, leaving it in the road, with its occupants quietly seated therein. The horses ran nearly a mile, but were suddenly stopped by one of them falling down. No serious damage was done.

Echoes.

There are few voices in the world, but many echoes.
There are few "if any" medicines in the world that are better for Billiousness, Indigestion or Sick Headache than Spring Blossom.
Prices: $1.50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport, Pa.

Opinions.

The nakedness of this indigant world, may be clothed from the trimmings of the vain "Goldsmith."

"Sufferers from disordered Stomach, Billousness, etc., can be cured by Spring blossom, "Foster Milburn & Co." Buffalo. Prices: $1.50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport, Pa. 13-1t.

Geo. Brent, Clinton Street, Buffalo, says, your Spring Blossom is a first class remedy for sick headache and stomach derangements, and also acts well on the kidneys. Prices: $1.,50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport Pa. 13-1t

Slightly Exhilarated.

"RE-POL DE RIDDLE! How well I feel!" Chirped an elderly bachelor t'other morning. "That Thomas' Eclectric Oil seems to have cured my lumbago completely, I feel as if I were young again and believe I'll ask the widow to have me." He did so, was accepted and is now the happy parent of a fine boy. Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport, Pa.

Conundrum:

CONUNDRUM. Why is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil like a glazier? Ans. Because it takes out bad pains. Moreover it relieves throat and lung complaints, piles, kidney troubles, etc., is economic, prompt, pure and is composed of the best oils known.

☞ Snuff or dust of any kind, and strong, caustic of poisonous solutions aggravate catarrh and drive it to the lungs. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures catarrh by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. Each package prepares one pint of the remedy ready for use, and costs only fifty cents. Sold by druggists. So positively certain is it in its results that its former proprietor used to offer a standing reward of $500 for a case it would not cure.

Personal.—Mr. Isaac B. Hasbuck, of Skanateles, N. Y., writes: I have been troubled with bronchitis for years, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the only medicine that would ever take effect; one dollar's worth of it has entirely cured me. I have used it for several other afflictions, and have always found it to have the best results. After once using the Eclectric Oil, no one will be without it. It is more fully described in regular advertisement; see another column.

Attention.

A cough, a cold or a sore throat should be checked at once. If allowed to continue, a permanent throat disease is often the result. Hamilton's Cough Troches reach directly the seat of the disease and give almost immediate relief. For public speakers, singers, and those who overtax the voice, they will render articulation easy. Price, 25 cents per box. Sold by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The leading Scientists of to-day agree that most diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the Kidneys and Liver are kept in perfect order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value, it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE Remedy for all the diseases that cause pain in the lower part of the body—for Torpid Liver—Headaches—Jaundice—Dizziness—Gravel—Fever, Ague—Malarial Fever, and all difficulties of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation and is invaluable for Leucorrhœa or Falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organs that make the blood.
